REUNION OF TWO SEPARATED SISTERS WHO WERE IGNORANT OF EACH OTHER'S EXISTENCE.

A romantic reunion of two sisters, who were separated in harancy and who for twenty-three years have been ignorant of each other's existence, has taken place as Beverly. Mass. Both are now married, one being Mrs. Caddie Bartlett, of Bartlett. Isles, Mc., and the other Mrs. Charles S. Dennis, who lives in Beverly. Their parents died when the two sisters were very young, Mrs. Dennis being the elder. The father, at the time of the birth of Caddie, now Mrs. Bartlett, was in the war. On the death of the mother the sisters became separated, being adopted into different families. They grew up, each in entire ignorance that she had a sistar in the world. By mere accident a few months ago friends of Mrs. Dennis met same people living near where the sisters were born. In the course of conversation names were mentioned which brought to light the romantic story of their unknown relationship. Mr. Dennis began is correspondence with people in Mianda, which handly resulted in the discovery of Mrs. Bartlett. She arrived in Beverly, Monday by the "Flying Yankee," the trip, by the way, being the first railroad journey of her life. The meeting between the sisters cannot be easily described. It is learned that they have a brother; bring; and all three will sook he happily re mited.

houses to stand empty, however, and the increase of homes only keeps hace with the steady growth of population. When one considers that the inhabitanta-of this city now number about 1,400,000 and that the population has doubled, since 1856, it is natural to ask; a Where do so many people find homes! Stringers in the city often get far astray. In their calculations regrowing the number of, buildings in the city when they have traversed some miles of streets and avenues in the resident districts, and they often express surprise beof streets and avenues from the surprise be-cause New Yorkers cannot tell the num-hers of the various kinds of human habitations in the big hive. In every! large fire Insurance offlice in town the clerk inave at hand many interesting facts about the structures upon which risks are talken, and structures upon which risks are taken, assume 1882 the members of the Fire Department have made two separate counts and classifications of all the buildings in madelessifications of all the buildings in the city.

When the last count was completed there were 101,735 buildings of a 1 kinds standing within the city limits, and the present number is about 103,000. Of buildings used exclusively for dwelling purposes there are 48,780, and 30,300 of these are dwelling houses, each occupied by only one family. The addition of 26,-130 tenement houses with stories on the first floors and 2,335 buildings which have rooms for families only in the tot, stories brings the number of dwellings up to 77,-235. If the population of New York lwas distributed evenly, among the faultings used wholly or in part for dwelling purposes, each house would contain leighteen persons and there would be no complaints of overcrowding, but there are 21,536 tenement houses which contain from two to ment houses which contain from two to four families on each floor, and such families be sugarly consists of a mantant wife and several children. About 3,800, of those houses are more than four stories a beight and a proper house of the floor. and 1,300 of them are rear houses. There are also 16.800 flat houses or tenemen houses which have an average of one family on each llater. A gradual thinning of houses which have an average of the family on each floor. A gradual thinning of population in the tenement house district is being brought about by the flaw which provides for the execution of fire exages of the front walls of houses which contain more than two families on each floor. Many property-owners are loath to disfigure the fronts of the remement house with the contained the remember house with the contained the required by law-partly because they fear a reduction in rents. They accordingly, knock on; some partitions, drive out a few families and bind themselves by affidivits on file in the Bureau of Buildings not to let more than two families accopy a single floor.

Many old residents of the city can remember when the number of dwellings south of Houston street was greater than the number of such houses above Fourteenth street on Manhattah Island
Business places have occupied so much of the ground in the lower part of the city in recent years that the district south of Houston street contains only 15,000 dwellings, and nearly 10,000 of them are north of Chambers street and east of Broadway, while only 2,000 houses in the district are escapied by one family each. Between Houston and Twenty-third streats there are about 4,000 fiviate houses. Between Twenty-third and Fifty-ninth streats there are 21,273 buildings for dwelling purposes, Twenty-third and Fifty-ninth streets there are 21,273 buildings for dwelling rurposes, 7,560 of which are private house! East of Central Park, between Efty-nath and One hundred-and-tenth streets, the houses One hundred and-tenth streets, the houses which contain only one family each out-number the other dwellings. There are 4.820 private houses, 380 boardor houses or bouses which contain two families each, 1,413 flats and 2,162 tenement houses in the district. In the corresponding district west of Central Park there are 10 by 2,347 dwellings, of which 1,606 are private houses, a tew are first-class flat houses and only 307 are tenement houses. The other structures in the district are sharties. Above Ore-hundred-and-tenth street, as far as the darlem river, there are 700 tenement houses, 1,200 flats and 4,690 private houses.

The rest are office buildings, that are regarded as dwellings because each contains rooms for a jantor's family. No less than 17,600 dwellings, 4,190 of them tenement houses are wooden buildings.

The Art of Dining. -

[Good Housekeeping.] To begin with, then, let the table, when no one is present but the home circle, be the model of what it should be when surrounded by guests. Lay a piece of thick Canton flannel under your table cloth. Even coarse napery will look like a much better quality with a sub-cover than if spread directly over the bare table top.
Avoid the cheap tricks of hotels and restaurants in the arrangement of napkinsand table utensils. Simplicity is never ridiculous, while pretension usually is, ridiculous, while pretension usually is, Place the napkin on the left side of the plate, with a piece of bread in its folds, the fork on the right hand, next to that the kaife, with the sharp edge turned from the one who is to use it, beyond this the soup spoon. At the point of these set the tumbler and individual butter plate. Maks, tablespoons, sait cellars and pepper-cruets may be arranged to spit one's own taste. Banish the heavy caster from the center of the table and put there instead a vase of flowers, if it be nothing, more ambitious than some bits of hypor evergreent brightness one bits of hypor evergreent brightness one bits of hypor evergreent brightness of the point towards the middle or the table, to protect the cloth from splashes off gravy. Let the soup be served by the mistress and eaten with no accompaniment except a piece of dry breacheld in the hand. Buttering it is only less vulgar that thickening the contents of the plate with crumbs. When this course has been removed, the meat and vegetables may be placed on the tables. If there be salast it should be served separately, in a course by itsent.

ment and very name be sailed it should be served separately in a course by itself.

The heavy part of the dinner cateo, the heavy part of the dinner cateo, the summoned and should be summoned and should The heavy part of the dinner entro, the maid should be summoned and should commence the clearing of the table by carrying out, first the meat, then the dishes of vegetables, and after that plates and butter plates, placing one on top of the other, and using a tray to transfer everything but the large platters. Do not see thing but the large platters. Do not permit her to go through the operation of scraping the contents of one plate into an-

A question often asked by tersons who have occasion to note the raft d increase of dwellings in this city is: "Where do they find people to occupy so many knuess."

About 1,800 buildings for dwelling purposes, more than half of them large flats or tenement houses, were erected in the city last year at an expense of lover 830-000,000. Property owners do not build houses to stand empty, however, and the increase of homes only keeps a race with the steady growth of propulation. When one considers that the inhabitants of this city now number about 1,400,000 and that the population has doubled, since 1886, its natural to ask; a "Where do is many people find homes?" Stringers in the city in a large that the straight of the control of the shape of look and digest to lymbour the slightest, difficulty. I most cheered to be required beautiful to the first three can be wreathly bealed. Take the prescript 1 look after whole, lasted to before.
